

WESTERLY

A young man whose name is said to be Smith from near Hartford, and who last week was around Westerly and Stonington taking orders for magazines to earn his college education for next fall was on the road between Stonington and Westerly, headed for the latter place Thursday afternoon about three o'clock driving a Ford car. When nearly opposite the Harborside school house, two men jumped aboard his running board and demanded the driver to turn his car to the north. Upon turning around Smith saw a pistol placed at his ear. He then turned his car in the roadway which leads to the north, up into the road leading by the Collins place. Near the old stone house which was formerly used as a barn the two men demanded Smith to turn over what he had on him. Smith put up a fight, but was soon laid unconscious by being hit on the side of his head with a black-lack. Upon gaining consciousness he found his gold watch and chain missing all his papers and credentials and money gone. He had a bad swelling on his head. Judge Pike on Wampasset Point was notified and in turn notified the police all along the line to be on the watch for the two hold-up men. The police have a good description of them and are working on the case.

There have been several cases of late when fake solicitors and collectors have visited Westerly on some pretense or other and raised considerable money before they have been apprehended. In order to protect the public from being swindled further, the advisory committee of the board of trade will furnish all solicitors for a worthy cause, with proper credentials and the endorsement on their permits will be signed by Thomas Perry, chairman.

There have been about six new conductors trying out on the Green & Westerly division of the trolley line during the last three weeks. These men will no doubt fill the places made for them by the opening of the trolley service between Westerly and Stonington. It is said the service will open by July 1st. There is some little talk about making needed repairs at the bridge at White Rock. When the franchise was granted for the Shore Line company to come into Westerly it was specified in the franchise that the trolley company should maintain and keep in a safe condition the White Rock structure which gives passage over the Pawcatuck river to all vehicles. A year ago last fall the trolley company tried to abandon the structure after operation ceased between Westerly and Stonington in July, 1919, the company then offered the bridge to the town of Westerly. The town council voted to accept the bridge provided the town of Stonington would take like action but the deed to the structure has never been accepted.

Last September the vehicle section of the bridge was unsafe, many planks having rotted. The bridge was closed by the town of Westerly and that time the bridge was closed to the town of Stonington. The bars were removed by some one and the signs which warned persons that the bridge had been closed to public travel were torn down also. A little later the town of Stonington voted to close the Connecticut end of the bridge and a fence was placed across the Connecticut approach. A part of the fence is still standing. The sign reads, "This highway closed by vote of the town of Stonington. Signed 'Selectman'." It appears from the way the bridge is signed that the bridge was closed by one of the selectmen and not by all. It is also understood that a part of the barrier which was placed across the bridge was removed from the Connecticut side and the bridge is being used at the present time it is stated.

Repairs have been made this week and new planks have been laid. The proprietor of the store on the North Stonington road is said to have laid them. The public is waiting with pleasure the resumption of the trolley between Westerly and Stonington.
